LeCHOP is back and chopping restaurant prices until March 2, 2017.

Montreal, January 12th 2017 - For the fifth year in a row, LeCHOP is firing up the ovens of four Montreal hotspots to serve the finest cuisine. This year, things are heating up. The fire theme has all participating chefs ready to ignite taste buds with their interpretations of heat, spice and flavour. This eight-week food festival will take place at Wienstein & Gavino's, Decca77, and both L'Atelier d'Argentine locations; Downtown and Vieux-Port. Each restaurant is offering a fabulous 3 course set menu at chopped prices.

After last year's cooking competition, the LeCHOP chefs are really feeling the heat to out-do each other this year. They are fired up and ready to impress the city of Montreal with their most imaginative and delicious dishes yet. Be prepared for next-level spice and flavour! The public is invited to indulge in these fiery creations to beat those sub-zero temperatures.

Keep an eye out for L'Atelier d'Argentine's Group Executive Chef Natalia Machado who will be showcasing her authentic and fiery Argentinian flavour with Crema de Mariscos and Risotto de Calabaza Asada. Decca77's Executive Chef Jean-Sebastien Giguère sizzles and impresses with local, fresh-market and seasonal delicacies like burnt salmon gravlax and fire-seared blue marlin. As well, Wienstein & Gavino's Executive Chef Joseph Depalo brings the spice- - Italian style – with dishes like his Carpaccio di Manzo and Pesce Specchio con Salsa Carbonizzato.

The 2017 edition of LeCHOP runs from January 9th until March 2nd and offers 3 course table d'hôte menus at $25 per person. The participating restaurants in LeCHOP are all located Downtown and in the Old Port of Montreal. They are all establishments owned by Ville-Marie Collection.

LeChop prices do not apply on February 11th and February 14th, as there are additional special offers for Valentine's Day.*
